Newspaper Scenes in Marc MacDermott Feature

Director Gains Permission to Make Building a Studio

"The Price of Fame," Vitagraph's five part Blue Ribbon feature, starring Marc MacDermott and Naomi Childers, is the attraction at the Oregon theatre next Thursday.

This production, which is one of the first released by the Greater Vitagraph, contains a complete tour through one of New York's largest newspaper buildings, interwoven with the strong dramatic plot.

The reporter's room to show, with the city editor's desk, the cartoonists sketching the comical figures which will create a laugh in the morning paper, and the hundred and one other details concerned in the making of a daily paper.

The cylinders, with their columns of type, are shown, and the massive machines and presses which turn out the hundreds of daily sheets conveying the news to the population.

The fly boys are seen grabbing the papers as they come from the press, the ink still damp and hurrying to the large trucks standing outside waiting to carry the sheets to their destination.

These scenes were filmed with the permission of the editor, and the various employees of the paper became movie players for the film doing their utmost to keep their eyes from the camera and follow the director's instructions.

SITUATION IS (Continued from page one.)

tion he deemed necessary, short of war.
 It already has been clearly indicated his next step will not be a declaration of hostilities.

If President Wilson should decide to start hostilities with Germany after March 4, the country would have to wait 15 or 20 days to learn whether congress will support him.

The president, at this time, could go before congress at any hour and ask for its approval of a declaration of war, as provided by the constitution. But members of the house today declared they think he would not want to ask an expiring congress to declare war that must be carried on in the next congress.

Congress Ends Sunday.
 The 64th congress ends at noon Sunday, March 4. The house, to meet March 5, would have to organize before it could do any work. The senate, however, is a continuing body and will be in session after March 4 to confirm members of the new cabinet. Should President Wilson decide on March 4 to ask congress to declare war, he would have to keep the senate in session and give members of the next congress in the house enough time to get to Washington and organize before they voted on the question of declaring war. Many members, though, will be in Washington for inauguration and more than a quorum would be here at all times.

When the 1913 extra session was called President Wilson gave members more than a month to organize the house. The extra session began about the middle of April. Each member is entitled to sufficient notice to permit him to reach Washington.

While a fight on the speakership is certain in the next congress, members believed that should an extra session be called solely to declare war, Speaker Clark probably would be continued in that position to avoid any suggestion of dissension in the country at such a moment.

FOR COMPULSORY TRAINING

Washington, Feb. 17.—Representative Caldwell, of New York, during the debate on the army bill late today, announced he would introduce an amendment providing for compulsory military training.

One of the members of the legislature gave a stereoscopic lecture at the Pringle school house Friday evening.

The ladies of the Pringle and Pleasant Point social club served lunch after the lecture in the way of doughnuts and sandwiches and coffee at 10c a plate.

Mr. and Mrs. Brockmiller expect to leave for their home in South Dakota next week.

London, Feb. 17.—Private G. S.
 Taylor, of Detroit, shook hands with Queen Mary with a false hand he invented when his right arm was amputated, and declares he has not washed the hand since.

"5 Pound Bucket of Lard—95c, Not 65c

Mr. Thomason of the Peoples Meat Market, 155 N. Liberty is more than sure that it pays to advertise in the Capital Journal.

Since seven o'clock this morning his shop has been filled with people who very naturally wanted to buy a 5 pound bucket of best kettle rendered lard for 65 cents.

The ad inserted in Friday's Journal should have read "5 pound bucket for NINETY FIVE cents," but the 9 in some way was turned up side down and read 6. Hence the mistake.

Mr. Thomason is therefore absolved from all blame and the proof reader of the Capital Journal pleads "guilty" and agrees to buy one of the 200 buckets of lard that are left at 95 cents a bucket, which is a very evident bargain to any one who knows the regular retail price of this product.
